Core Concept: Put Everything In Your CoSchedule Marketing Calendar

Marketing projects, requests, and ideas get dropped on you from all directions – emails, Slack messages, meetings, and even desk drop-bys.

With CoSchedule Marketing Calendar, you now have a place to manage every project and request that comes your way. Once you get in the habit of putting everything in Marketing Calendar, it becomes your single source of truth for your marketing.

Throughout this guide, you're going to learn step-by-step how to build your own marketing calendar so you can get visibility into everything you are doing and when.

What is this guide?

This lesson will walk you through how to use CoSchedule Marketing Calendar to see all your projects & social messages on a single calendar.

Who is this guide for?

Marketers who wear many hats and struggle to coordinate their marketing work as their task list grows.

Bulk Import Existing Projects & Content On Your Marketing Calendar

If you already have projects and content in a different platform such as Google Sheets, Excel, or a different project management platform, you can bulk import this content to your Marketing Calendar.

This is made easy with Marketing Calendar's Bulk Project Import feature.

To import projects, follow these steps:

1. Select Bulk Project Import in the Create drop down menu.
2. Choose which platform to import your projects.
3. Follow the provided directions to import all your content into Marketing Calendar.

Now that your existing projects have been added to your marketing calendar, all new projects need to be added to your Calendar

Add A Project To Your Calendar On The Publish Date

Marketing Calendar is meant to be used as a publishing calendar – meaning you'll add projects to the calendar on the day they will go live or be completed.

Here's why:

- This provides visibility, so you (and others) know what's going live and when.
- It helps set priorities (i.e. the next upcoming project should be your priority).
- It creates a deadline – which increases the likelihood of accomplishing a project on time.

Think of an upcoming blog post, newsletter, event, etc. that you are currently working on. Now it's time to add it to your Calendar.

To add a new project, click the plus sign on the specific date on your calendar you want the project to publish or go live. Then select the project type.

Onboarding Milestone: Create Your First Project

Give Your Project A Name

After you've clicked the plus sign on the publish date and selected the project type, you'll need to give your project a name.

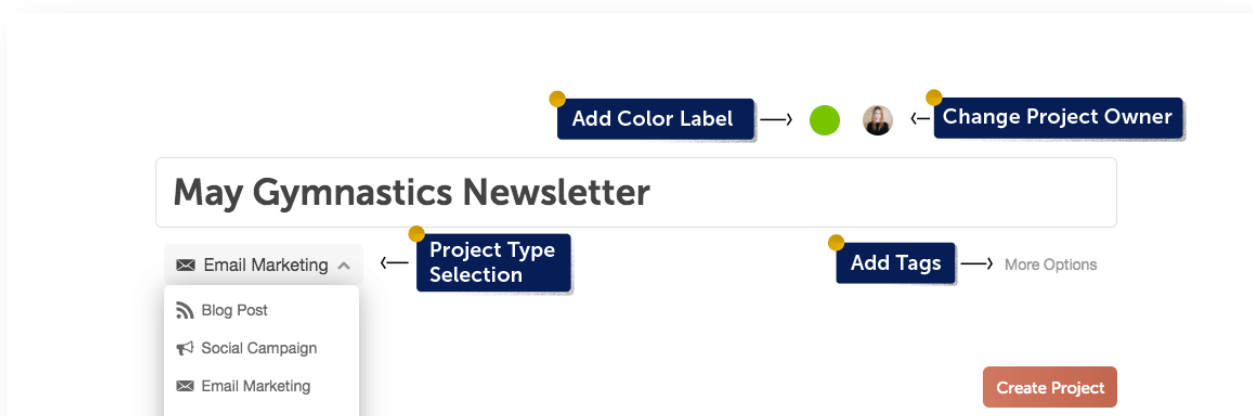

The project name shows up on your project card when you are on the Calendar view.

Continue adding planned marketing projects to your calendar to create visibility into all of your projects.

Project Card Breakdown: See The Big Picture & What's Coming Next

The project card gives you all the details you just filled out like the project name, Color Label (which we'll learn about in Chapter 2), Project Type, and Tags.

The project type helps you understand the kind of content you'll create without having to click into the project for more details.

Why is a Project Type important?

- It shows the tactics that contribute to your marketing strategy.
- It helps inform others what you're working on for better visibility.
- It highlights project frequency so your strategy can be more balanced.
- It allows you to create saved, filtered views of your calendar (i.e. social messages only, email calendar, etc.).

Add Your Integrations

Integrations enhance your projects by syncing activities from outside tools like MailChimp, WordPress, and Social Media to your calendar – which means you don't have to waste your time duplicating work.

Here are a few of the best integrations for marketing teams like yours.

- WordPress & HubSpot – Whenever someone creates a new blog post in WordPress or HubSpot, it will automatically appear on your Marketing Calendar.
- Email Marketing – Whenever someone creates a new email in Mailchimp, HubSpot, Constant Contact, or Campaign Monitor, a new project card will appear on your Marketing Calendar.
- Social Media – Marketing Calendar connects to your social media channels, so you plan, create, and schedule your social messages alongside your other marketing projects.

To connect an integration:

1. Click the Settings button in the left-side panel.

2. Select Integrations from the menu list under Settings.

Core Concept: Get Your Process In Order

When you suffer from a lack of process, it can feel like your to-do list & projects are out-of-control.

It feels impossible to define your priorities or know when projects will be done. In this chapter, you'll learn how to use your CoSchedule Marketing Calendar to get a solid marketing process in place.

What is this guide?

This lesson will walk you through how to use CoSchedule Marketing Calendar to see all your projects & social messages on a single calendar.

Who is this guide for?

Marketers who wear many hats and struggle to coordinate their marketing work as their task list grows.

Change The Status of a Project

The Project Status shows what you are working on, and when it will be published. This helps you prioritize your work, and keep things from going live before you are ready.

There are four statuses in your Marketing Calendar:

Draft - Project WILL NOT publish or go live. Best used when the project is still in progress.

Pending Review - Project WILL NOT publish or go live. Best used when a project needs to be approved by another individual.

Scheduled - Project WILL publish or go live at the time scheduled. Best used when a project is completed, but will go live at a future date/time.

Published - Had been published, sent, or is live on your website/social media channels. Best used to mark which projects have been fully completed by your team.

To change the status of a project:

1. The Project Status shows what you are working on, and when it will be published. This helps you prioritize your work, and keep things from going live before you are ready.
2. There are four statuses in your Marketing Calendar:

Choose Your Color Labels

Color labels are the most powerful way to add visual organization to your calendar. Customize your labels to match what is most important to your company or add visual hierarchy to your calendar.

Here are a few of the most common ways people use them:

Color Only: Use this if you want a simple way to add visual hierarchy to your calendar.

- Purple
- Yellow
- Blue
- Green

Region: Use this if your team creates marketing materials for different business regions.

- West
- Midwest
- Southeast
- South

Product line: Use this if your team creates content to promote different product lines.

- Gardening
- Lawn Care
- Snow Removal
- Landscaping

Department/Team: Use this if you need to quickly see which department marketing projects serve.

- Sales
- Demand Generation
- PR
- Product Marketing

Client: Use this if you're an agency and need to divide your work by client.

- Country Table Foods
- Lynx Machinery
- Johnson Ag Products
- Red Tree Electric

Onboarding Milestone: Customize Your Calendar

Apply Color Labels To Your Marketing Calendar

To set up color labels:

1. Click the Settings button in the left-side panel.
2. Select Color Labels from the menu list under Settings.

After you've set up color labels, you can apply them to your projects to visually distinguish between different projects on your calendar.

Bonus Step: Apply Additional Metadata To Your Projects

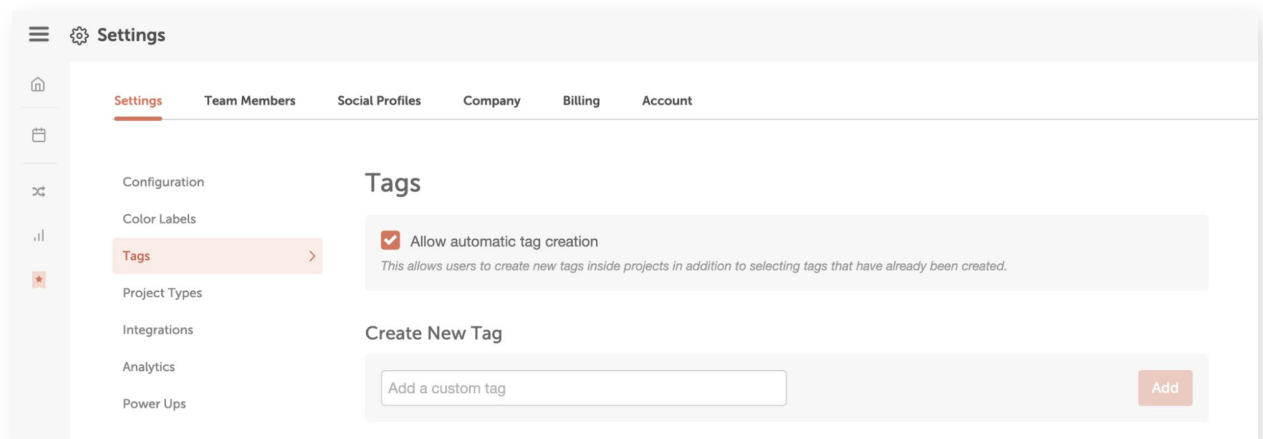

Aside from color labels, there are additional descriptors you can add to your projects for even better visibility.

Tags

Tags build an added layer of information on top of your color labels. Use tags to quickly see which projects contribute to various goals, target audiences, or initiatives at a glance.

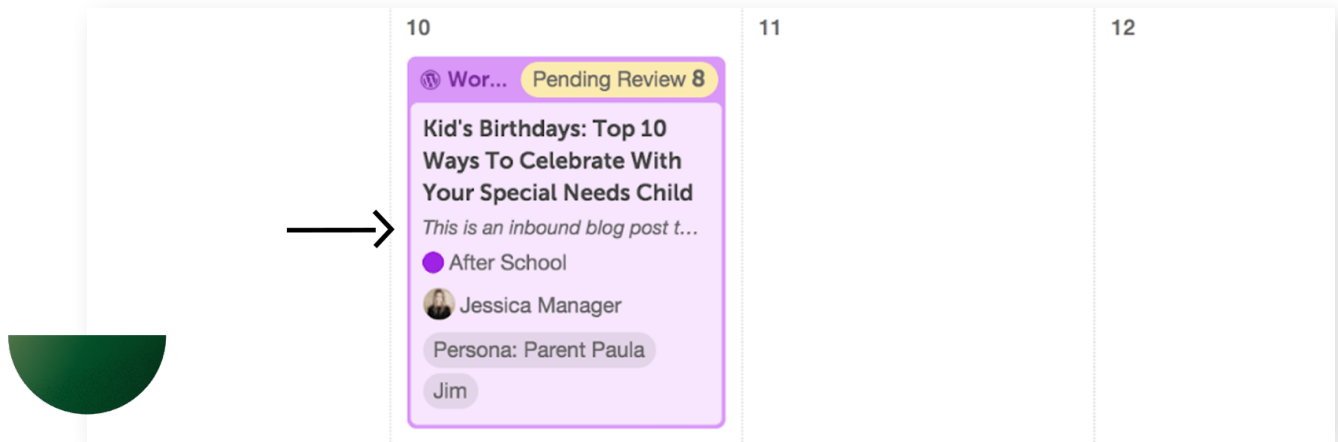

Tags are automatically added to your calendar when you add a new tag inside any project. You can manage your list of Tags by going to the “Tags” section in your Settings.

Descriptions

Use Project Descriptions to add more context or details to a specific project's Project Card. This helps you quickly know an important summary of your project.

Descriptions can be added by clicking "More Options" when creating a new project or below the project name within a project card.

Core Concept: Plan All Your Social Media In CoSchedule Marketing Calendar

CoSchedule Marketing Calendar is the only marketing calendar that lets you plan all your marketing projects AND write, schedule, and publish your social messages in the same place.

This chapter highlights the best ways Marketing Calendar helps you get proactive, so you can stop wasting time with the painful and time-consuming parts of social media.

What is this guide?

This lesson will walk you through the best way to maximize your social media strategy with CoSchedule Marketing calendar.

Who is this guide for?

Marketers who wear many hats and struggle to coordinate their marketing work as their task list grows.

Create Social Messages On Your Calendar

There are two different ways to create social messages on your Marketing Calendar – a stand-alone social message and a social campaign.

Stand-alone social messages are great for one-off messages that you want to post on social media.

Social campaigns are a series of several social media messages that get posted to your social channels over an extended period of time. Social campaigns are usually used to promote blog posts, videos, events, or webpages.

Pro Tip:

To drive the most traffic to your content, try promoting your content on social media several times over the course of a few weeks.

Schedule A Stand-Alone Message

To schedule a stand-alone social message:

1. Click to create a new project on your Marketing Calendar.
2. Choose Social and then Social Message.
3. This will open the social composer where you can create a stand-alone social media message.

Schedule a Social Media Campaign

Social Campaigns allow you to send multiple messages using your different social media platforms over a designated period of time. Using campaigns ensures your audience is more likely to see your content. This drives more traffic and helps improve the return on investment for all your hard work.

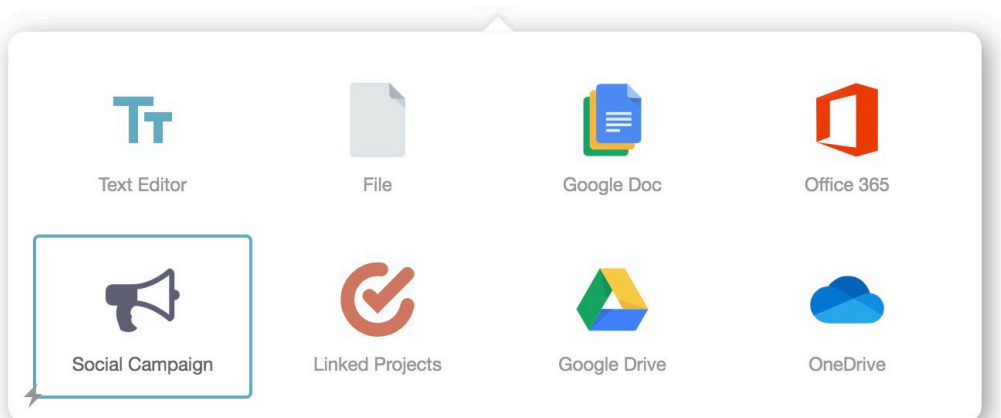

There are two ways to schedule a Social Campaign in your Marketing Calendar.

1. Attach a Social Campaign to a Marketing Project

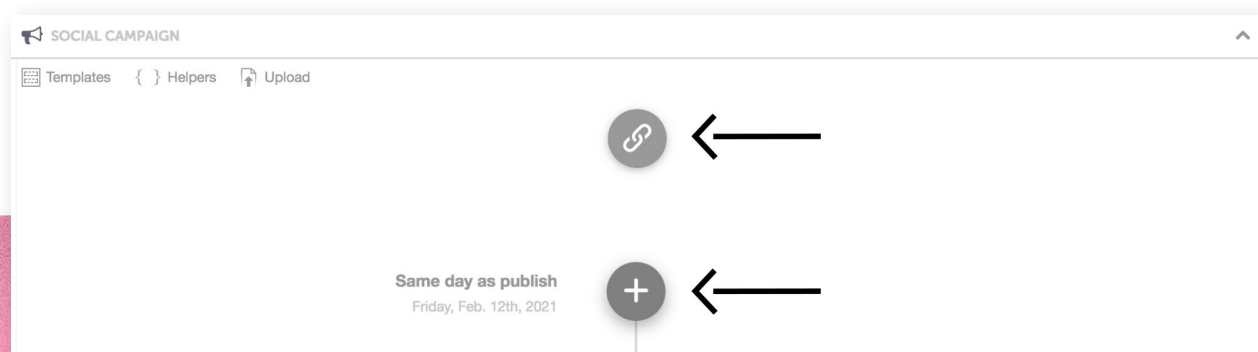

If you're creating a social media campaign to promote another marketing project you have planned in Marketing Calendar, it's best to attach that campaign directly to your project.

In this example, you'll learn how to create a social media campaign to promote a blog post.

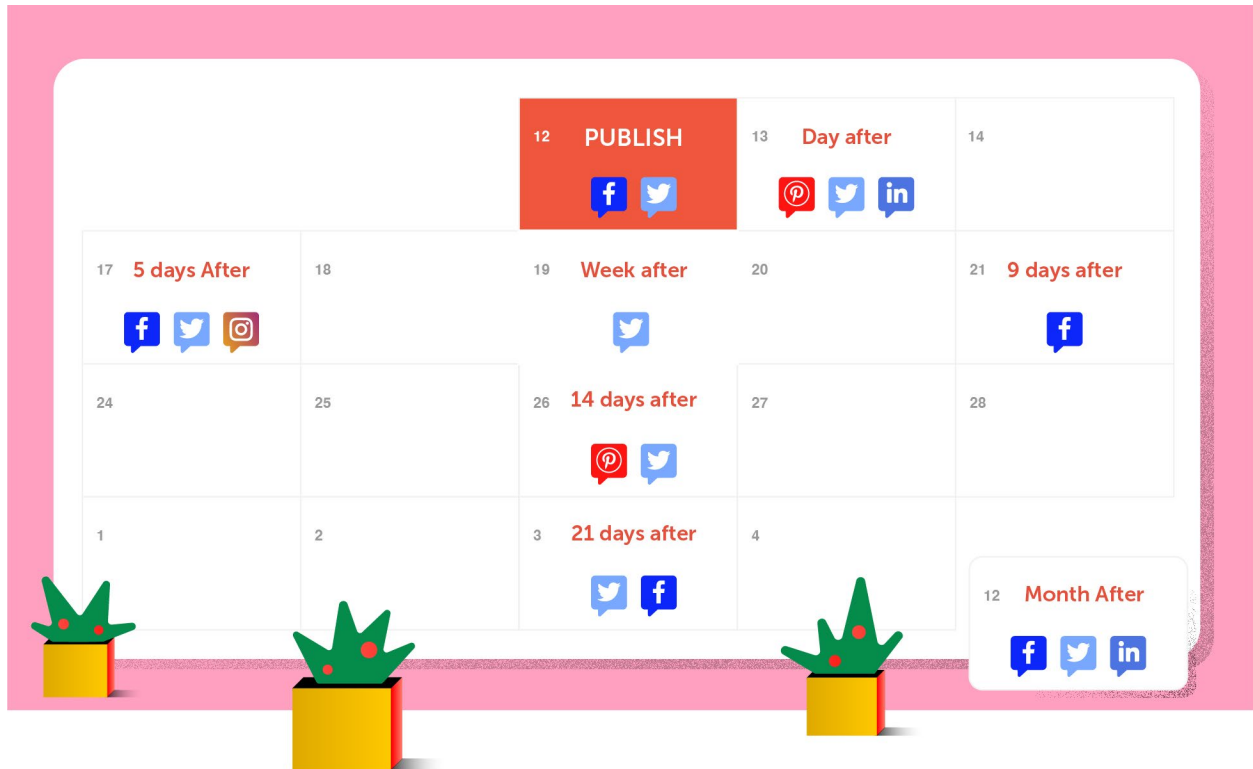

1. Open the project on your calendar.
2. Add a "Social Campaign" attachment

3. Next, click the plus sign to add a social message on a specific day.
4. Add the link to your blog post by clicking the link button on the top.

If you're not sure how you should build out your first social campaign, here's our best practice recommendation. Keep in mind that this can be customized based on the social channels you use.

2. Schedule a Stand-alone Social Campaign

Create a stand-alone Social Campaign for a campaign that doesn't promote a marketing project that's set up in your Marketing Calendar. This could be a campaign that promotes partner content, a recent news story that pertains to your business, or a positive customer review you want to promote.

To create a stand-alone social campaign:

1. Click to add a new project to your calendar.
2. Choose "Social", then "Social Campaign"

3. Name your social campaign and apply any details (like a color label or description).
4. Click the plus signs to add messages just like you did in the previous section.

Advanced Social Strategy

Use Social Message Optimizer To Write Better Messages

The Social Composer has a built-in optimizer that helps you write more engaging social messages.

Once you've written your social media message, click Analyze. From here, you can fine-tune your message so it will perform even better on social media.

Add Alt Text To Your Social Messages

When previewing your content in full size using the Media Previewer, you will have the option to add Alt Text to your social messages.

By implementing Alt Text, screen readers will be able to assist visually impaired individuals with image recognition within your CoSchedule Marketing Calendar as well as posts to Twitter, Facebook, and Pinterest.

Use Best Time Scheduling To Post At The Right Times

Marketing Calendar has built-in automation that allows you to post to your social media channels at the best times. This takes the guesswork out of posting your social media messages.

With Best Time Scheduling, you can schedule with confidence, knowing your messages are being sent at the best time possible — according to research and best practices — for increased traffic, engagement, and followers.

To use Best Time Scheduling, use the dropdown to select a “best time” timeframe. Marketing Calendar will automatically post your message on your behalf at the best time within the selected timeframe.

Social Analytics Reports

Social analytics reporting can be time-consuming, confusing, and difficult. With the Social Analytics Reports in your Marketing Calendar, you can easily translate confusing data into an easy-to-understand report to fuel your social strategy in seconds.

There are a variety of different reports you can use to gain insights on different channels and content.

Social Engagement Report Overview

This report allows users to get a high-level overview of your entire social strategy. You can dive in deeper using filters for social profiles, project types, tags, and color labels. This allows you to build reports that are specific to your initiatives, stakeholders, or clients.

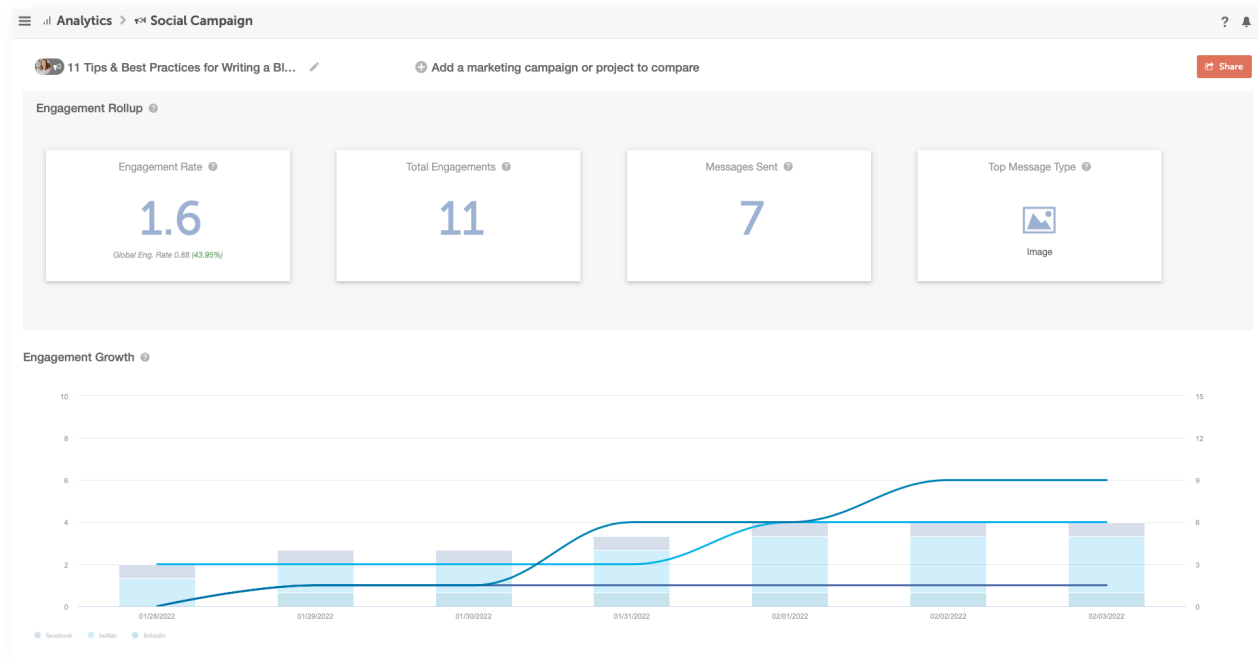

Use Social Engagement Reports to:

- Identify top-performing messages
- Download and share reports with stakeholders
- Visualize trends across your social channels
- Compare how different channels are performing

Social Campaign Report Overview

Use the Social Campaign Report to measure the success of specific campaigns and initiatives.

Social Profile Report Overview

Social Media algorithms are always changing. This tool allows you to analyze each profile's best times, days, and message types for your channels.

Social Message Analytics

Social Engagement Analytics will be tracked for messages scheduled to Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, and Instagram. You can use this information to make small changes to your promotion schedule for better results.

Core Concept: Keep Everything in One Place With Projects

Projects in Marketing Calendar help you bring everything into one place, so you can easily see your progress and get organized.

In this lesson, you're going to learn a few ways to make the most out of planning your marketing projects in your Marketing Calendar.

What is this guide?

This lesson will walk you through tips and tricks to organize & execute your marketing projects in Marketing Calendar.

Who is this guide for?

Marketers who wear many hats and struggle to coordinate their marketing work as their task list grows.

Get Started With Project Attachments

When you open a project on your calendar, you'll see a list of attachments pop up.

Attachments make it easier to execute your projects by keeping everything in one place.

Here's a list of each attachment type and how you should use it.

Text Editor - Create Your Content

The text editor allows you to write content directly in your project. You can compose your blog post, video script, or any type of written document for your project.

Pro Tip: 🟡 ⚡ 📝

We're helping you create better content. Use CoSchedule's Famous Headline Analyzer or Email Subject Line Tester directly from the text editor. Simply click the "Analyze" button to create a more powerful headline or subject line.

Include All Related Assets & Files

Attach files to keep a project's supporting documents in one place. There are a few different ways you can attach files to your marketing projects in your calendar.

1. File - This allows you to attach a file directly from your computer's hard drive.

2. Google Drive - This allows you to attach a file from your Google Drive account.

3. One Drive - This allows you to attach a file from your Microsoft OneDrive account.

Compose Content With Google Docs

Select a Google content option to create a new document in your Google Drive without having to leave Marketing Calendar. You can also attach an existing Google Drive document. This is best used for creating the project's main deliverable.

Select the “Edit Inline” option to make changes or add comments to a Google Doc directly from your project. This unlocks all the features of the Google Doc editor without having to open another tab.

Pro Tip: Convert Content To A WordPress Blog Post

Click the gear ⚙️ after you've added a Google Doc or text editor attachment to convert the content to a WordPress blog post. CoSchedule will grab all the images, text, and links and automatically create a post over in your WordPress account.

Attach Office 365 Documents

Office 365 attachments function similarly to the Google Doc option outlined in the previous section.

You can create a new Word Doc, Excel Spreadsheet, or PowerPoint presentation from a marketing project.

Office 365 does not have the same inline editing capabilities as Google Docs. If you want to make edits to an Office 365 document, you'll have to do it directly from Word, Excel, or PowerPoint.

Group Related Marketing Projects Together As A Campaign (Linked Projects)

Add a Linked Project to connect two or more projects that either support one another or function together as a marketing campaign.

In this example, there are three projects that are connected to one another.

1. A how-to video
2. A written blog post that outlines the content of the video
3. A newsletter that distributes the video

Link projects together to easily find and reference projects that work toward the same goal.

Make Social Messages Part Of The Content Creation Process

As we discussed in Chapter 3, Marketing Calendar allows you to schedule your social messages directly in a marketing project. This makes writing your social messages a part of the content creation process — not an afterthought.

Pro Tip:

A social campaign is a string of social messages that extend over a period of time. Creating a campaign of social messages—rather than a stand-alone social message—drives more traffic to your content.

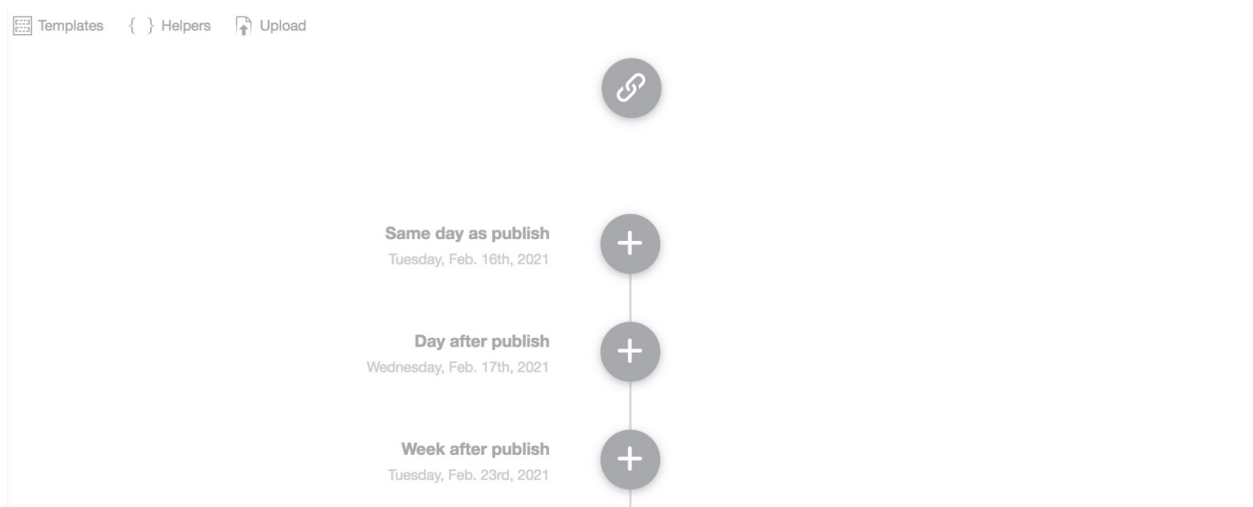

Here's a reminder on how to add a Social Campaign to a marketing project.

1. Choose the attachment option that says "Social Campaign".

2. Click the plus sign on a day you'd like to schedule a social message.
3. Use the social composer to create your social message.

The Best Way to Manage a Project From Start to Finish

In This Lesson

Step 1: Add Projects To Your Marketing Calendar

Step 2: Add A To-Do List To Your Project

Step 3: Create A New Google Doc Attachment

Step 4: Add A Social Media Campaign Attachment

Step 5: Schedule Your Project & Let CoSchedule Marketing Calendar Do The Rest

Bonus: Core Concept: Stay Flexible When Projects Change

Core Concept: Use Marketing Calendar To Plan A Project From Start To Finish

Now that you've learned all the parts of CoSchedule Marketing Calendar, it's time to tie it all together. This chapter focuses on how to manage a marketing project from start to finish using Marketing Calendar.

You'll take the elements you learned in each of the previous lessons to create a streamlined marketing process where things finally run smoothly.

What is this guide?

This lesson will walk you through how to manage a project from start to finish in Marketing Calendar.

Who is this guide for?

Marketers who wear many hats and struggle to coordinate their marketing work as their task list grows.

Step 1: Add Projects To Your Marketing Calendar

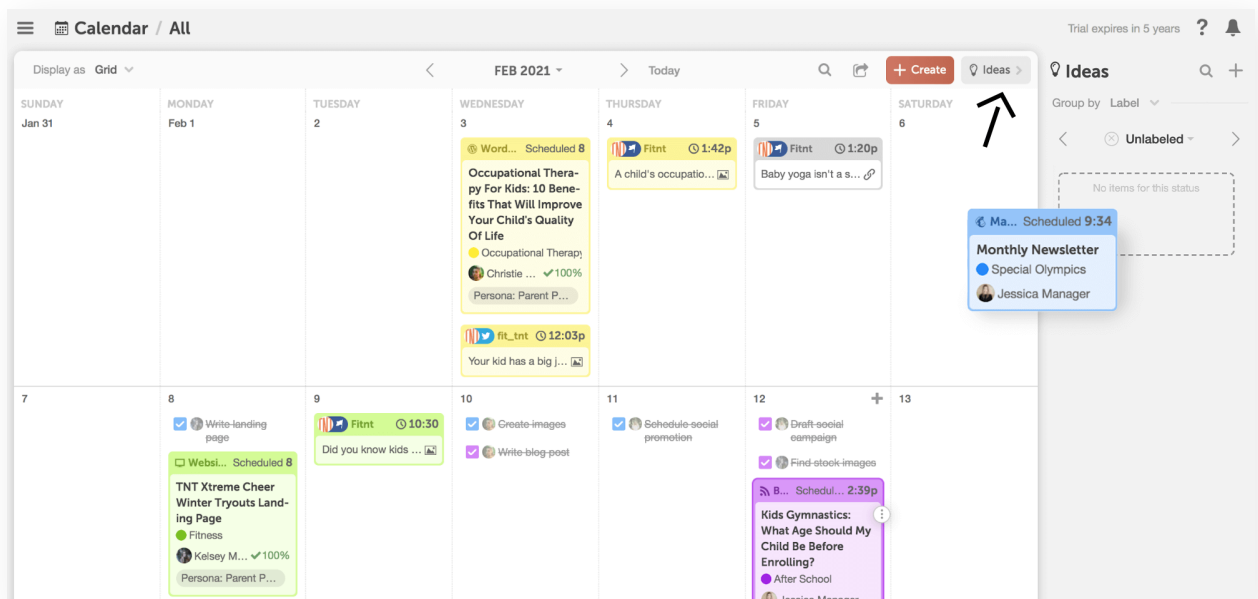

As we learned in Chapter 1, you can use Marketing Calendar for every project you are working on. Here are some common recurring marketing projects that you may want to add to your calendar if applicable.

- Weekly or monthly newsletters
- Upcoming events
- Blog post topics you want to write about
- Product landing page
- Conference slide deck

Once a project is on your calendar, it isn't set in stone. You can easily move projects that are on hold over to your Idea Bin.

Here's how:

1. Click the Ideas Button.
2. Drag and drop the project over to the Ideas area to keep it on your radar, but off your calendar.

Onboarding Milestone: Create Your First Project

Step 2: Add A To-Do List To Your Project

After you add a project to your calendar, the next thing you'll need to do is apply a task checklist to make sure everything gets done on time.

Manually Add Tasks

Within a project, you can add individual tasks and deadlines. Add all the tasks needed to complete the project.

Step 3: Create A New Google Doc Attachment

Next, you'll attach a new Google Doc to your project.

This allows you to write your content and collaborate all from one place. Once you've added the new Google Doc attachment, click the "Edit Inline" option to start writing your blog post directly in your Marketing Calendar.

Pro Tip:

You can also use the Text Editor or Word Doc attachments to write your content, if you prefer.

Step 4: Add A Social Media Campaign Attachment

Now you can add a social media campaign to your project. This allows you to write, collaborate, and promote your content related to the marketing project (i.e. blog post, podcast, press release, or event)

Using the exact social message cadence we discussed in chapter 3, add your social messages one by one to create a social media campaign.

In case you don't remember the social campaign recommendation, here's a graphic to help.

Onboarding Milestone: Create A Social Message

Step 5: Schedule Your Project & Let CoSchedule Marketing Calendar Do The Rest

Once you've completed all the previous steps in this lesson, it's time to schedule your project. This will not only schedule a piece of content to publish, but it will also put in motion the social media campaign you scheduled.

You'll find the project status in the top right corner of your project. When you're ready to schedule your project:

1. Click the Status
2. Choose Scheduled

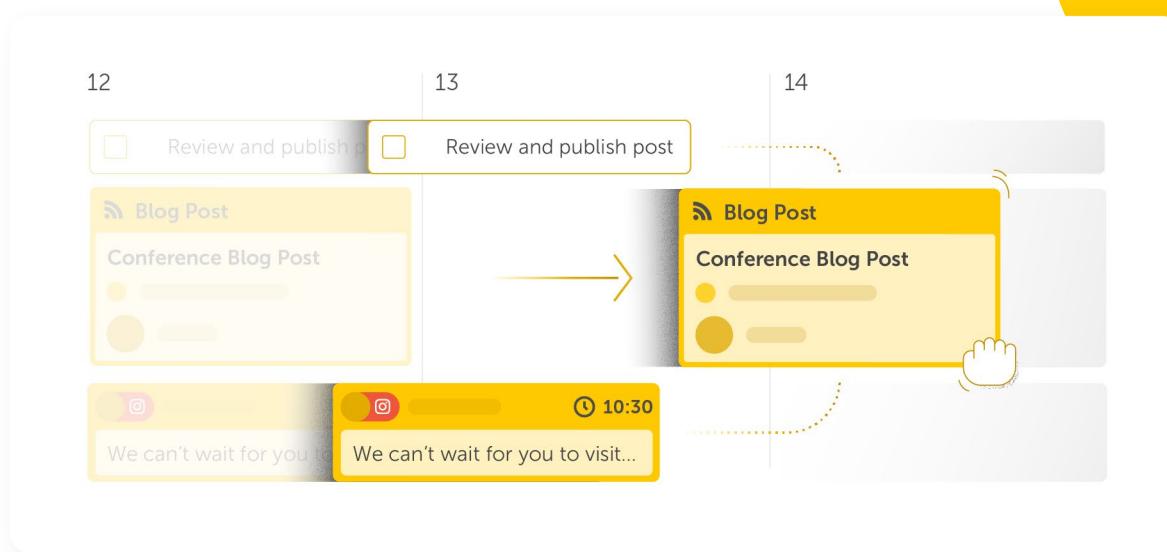

This lets you schedule your projects so Marketing Calendar can push everything live when it's time.

Bonus: Core Concept: Stay Flexible When Projects Change

Use the Drag and Drop feature on your calendar to easily move around projects, tasks, and social messages when plans change.

If a project's due date changes, simply drag and drop the project to a new date on the calendar. All the connected tasks and social messages will automatically reschedule along with it.
